

Is Homework Necessary?

To: Ms Doherty. From: Aisha

I am writing to persuade the principal of City west and Saggart Community National School. I hope I will persuade her in the end. Is homework necessary? I strongly believe with a doubt that homework is absolutely not necessary.

Firstly I think homework is not necessary because we learn for five and a half hours. Then come home thinking we are done learning and then there mom or dad asks you are you done homework.

Second of all when you are in fifth or sixth class you are stressed because you want to go secondary school and finish school. Not stay on the same grade. Homework stresses you out more because we can have a busy family and no one to help us e.g. You have no homework. Mom will I help. I have no homework. Then when we are finished helping we can have a family picnic and all of that stuff.

Thirdly it is so unfair that my Mr D Kinsella has to correct all of the useless homework that is total of one hundred thirty five copy's a week or less. I can imagine Mr D Kinsella sitting on a bench in City west village. Or he in City west shopping centre shopping for food, drinks and airway (chewing gum).

In conclusion I think homework is not necessary because:

- we learn five and a half hours we do not need more.

- It causes stress when you are in fifth class upper.
- The teacher has more free time on a bench in city west village chewing gum.

That is why I am trying to persuade you to ban homework.
