

Is Homework Necessary By Leah

Homework is something every child gets. No matter what school you go to whether it's in America or in Ireland everyone has at least had it once. Homework can take way to long and uses to time that you should to relax. Also teachers always tell you to go outside but... the homework uses all that time that you could use to go outside.

First of all, when we have homework we can be very tired, the reason for this is because we could get a lot of homework and that will use up most of our energy. So we won't learn as well as we should. Also studies have shown that children with no homework do better on tests because they are well rested unlike the others.

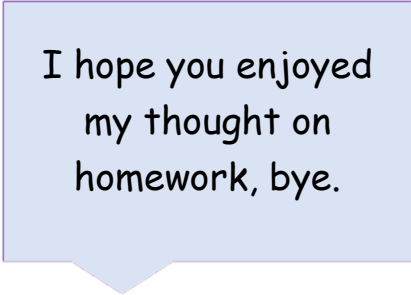

Secondly, the homework that we are getting is the same every day like we get a comprehension which may be the same but it still can take long or how about the maths one day we had 21 questions and they were hard. I get that homework is here to help students but the homework that we are getting is recycled information, and the work ends up in the bin. The BIN after all that hard work it's just a waste of time. Yeah maybe there might be the odd time were your mom or your dad will keep a tiny piece of work, but what about the rest. Exactly, it just wastes the students time because they have to do it, it wastes the teachers time because they have to correct is AND is wastes the parents time because they have to look at what they want to keep and what they want to throw out, it's a waste. Right?

Thirdly, Homework is added onto the other of dozens of things we have to do like we spend five hours and forty minutes in school add on the extra hour because of homework that's six hours forty minutes I'm only awake for ten hours and thirty minutes so that means I only get three hour and ninety minutes on free time, also I have other things to do so I probably only get one hour.

Last but not least, it's very unfair on my teacher he has to correct two hundred and sixteen copies a week that's around five thousand, six hundred and forty-six copies a year. That's very unfair on my teacher doing all that work for what? Exactly there's no point. The children don't care if there's a tick in there copy or not. It's a complete utter waste of time.

In conclusion all I have to say is Ms. Doherty if you would consider my opinion on the topic of homework and consider my and many others opinion when you are composing the school's homework policy. I understand it if you have a different opinion on homework. No-one thinks the same as each other.

I hope you enjoyed my thought on homework, bye.
