

Is Homework Necessary? (By Sophie)

I strongly believe that homework is not necessary. My reasons for this are that we already spent five and a half hours at school learning and we don't get to spend that much time with our family and friends. And also our poor teacher Mr. Kinsella has to correct our homework for at least an hour. I hope that when you read my persuasive text that I will persuade you to not give us homework.

Firstly we already spend five and a half hours learning at school and when we get homework we just revise all our work that we learned in school. I think it's just a waste of time and all of that hard work that we do for homework and in school in our copies and sheets all goes into the BIN the BIN it's just goes into terrible waste!

Secondly we don't get that much time to spend with our family and friends for example when we come back from school and eat dinner and then do our homework it is already late and we have to go to sleep. And we can't spend time and play with our friends and family.

Thirdly when we do all of that hard work for homework for Mr. Kinsella our teacher has to correct it and he has to correct it for at least an hour or two because when there is at least twenty eight children in our class and when everybody does a comprehension with at least five questions that makes one hundred and forty questions to correct and if there is about ten questions for maths that makes two hundred questions to correct (that is a lot).

Ms. Doherty In conclusion I believe that homework is not necessary and every child in the world should not get homework or at least in fifth class I am sure that homework is just a waste of time. I hope that you enjoyed reading my persuasive text and you will never and ever give us homework again in this school EVER.
